

COUNCIL PLEDGES ACTION IN WATER PROBLEM

Kaiser, Whose Own War Failed, Dies As New One Rages

Former Ruler of Imperial Germany Succumbs At Doorn Estate

BURIAL PLANNED ON PLOT IN EXILE

Followed Enthusiastically Drive of Hitler's German Army

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, June 4.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Imperial Germany died today at his exile estate of Doorn in the quiet backwash of a new German conquest, almost 23 years after he fled from the crumbling failure of his own European war.

DNB, German official news agency, reported from Amsterdam that the 82-year-old former emperor died at 11:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m., EST) in a sudden relapse of an illness which brought members of his family to his bedside last week.

Even in death, it was reported, the "Old Man of Doorn" was not to return to the land he ruled.

Burial at Doorn

General Wilhelm von Dommies, chief administrator of the Hohenzoellern properties, said the former kaiser would be buried at Doorn.

The "Old Man of Doorn," who in his time commanded the world's mightiest military machine, regarded the ascendancy of Adolf Hitler to the leadership of the reich in 1933 as "a step in the right direction."

When Hitler picked up the saber dropped in 1918 by the kaiser and turned it into "terrifying blitzkrieg" in 1939, 13 of Wilhelm's family were in Nazi uniform. One son, Prince Oscar of Prussia, 11 grandsons and one grandnephew of the Kaiser marched with the gray-green legions. Two of the grandsons since have fallen in battle. Another grandnephew was interned by the British.

Rumor on rumor had cropped up since 1933 that the kaiser was actively "behind-the-scenes" of rejuvenated Germany and that he would one day triumphantly return to Berlin to claim his "divine right" as emperor. All such reports were quickly spiked.

"Old trees can not be transplanted," the Kaiser often remarked, seemingly content in his orderly life at the Doorn estate.

Followed War's Course

He followed the present war painstakingly as though he had a commanding position at the Nazi general headquarters. He marked the progress of the Nazi war machine.

AXIS THREAT FORCES EGYPT CABINET OUT

Present Threat Considered Far More Dangerous Than Italy's

BEIRUT OIL BASE ATTACKED BY RAF

Britain Claims Increased Strength For Battle In Middle East

(By Associated Press)
Egypt's cabinet resigned late today, amid fears of Axis invasion and British warplanes bombed and machine-gunned the oil depot at nearby Beirut, Lebanon, in what may have been the opening blow in the next major campaign of the war.

Authoritative quarters in Cairo said the Egyptian cabinet shake-up was prompted by the "present grave circumstances" involving the belief that a German thrust into the rich valley of the Nile may be imminent.

It was said the present threat was considered far more serious than that of last autumn, when Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian legions knifed some 80 miles into Egypt from Libya.

A large announcement by British Middle East headquarters told of the RAF's attack on Beirut.

"A petrol dump at Beirut in Syria was bombed and machine-gunned by our aircraft," it said.

The British public had been clamoring for action.

Britain claimed today to have strengthened her hand for the great battle shaping up in the Middle East by two steps aimed at thwarting German strategy, but her position in Iraq apparently still was delicate.

These preliminaries for what may be a portentous struggle for the Middle East's oil and control of the Suez canal were announced by the British as successfully completed.

1. Reoccupation of Mosul, the oil center of Iraq, by British troops;

2. "Necessary precautions in regard to Syria," the potential bridgehead for an Axis thrust into Iraq and back-door drive toward Suez.

Although order was said to have been restored, the Middle East general headquarters conceded that martial law had been declared by the Iraq government in Baghdad yesterday following "serious rioting."

Harry Grunau's orchestra from Canton, a 10-piece band, will play for the dancing.

Tickets for the dinner-dance are available from Eugene Young and Orein A. Naragon. Reservations for the dinner should be made immediately with Mrs. William Luce.

MOTORIST HURT AS AUTO HITS TRUCK

Bert Rosenberger, 57, of Atlanta, Ga., suffered a forehead laceration which required 12 stitches to close, abrasions of the cheek and knees when his automobile struck the rear of a haul-away truck at the junction of Routes 7 and 14, just east of Columbiana, at 2:15 p. m. yesterday.

Frank Vodinski, 23, of Cleveland, the truck driver, was uninjured.

Albert A. Phillips, 21, of Beaver Falls, Pa., was arrested by the state patrol on a charge of reckless driving after his automobile hit another driven by Herbert L. Martin, 23, of R. D. 2, Leetonia, on Route 14, three and one-half miles east of Washingtonville at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

Mayor Arthur Myers at Columbiana fined Phillips $10 and costs.

Clare J. Thomas of Youngstown, charged by the patrol with reckless driving as the result of an accident on Route 62, seven miles west of Salem Sunday night, was fined $15 and costs at a hearing last night before Mayor George Wilson in Canfield.

The accident, which brought injuries to six persons, was caused when Thomas attempted to pass several other cars with traffic approaching him.

HEAVY RAINS AIDING CROPS

Streams in Southern Ohio Out of Banks; Highways Are Flooded

(By Associated Press)
Excessive rains which broke Ohio's driest spring in 25 years today spilled southern Ohio streams and rivers out of their banks, covering lowland fields and roads.

Southeastern Ohio was hardest hit. The Marietta area reported eight inches of rain since Saturday and in the Athens territory more than six inches fell.

Rising two inches an hour, the Hocking river at Athens passed the 17-foot flood stage this morning.

The 8.31 inches of rain at Marietta was within .69 inches of matching the 1913 "floodtime" record.

Streams out of their banks blocked traffic on routes 21 at Whipple and 26 at Woodsfield and Rindas Mill, 50 at Sharpsburg Hill and 33 north of Chaucery.

Crops Benefit

Scattered showers fell today in some portions of Ohio as fields, orchards and gardens, newly drenched by the heaviest rainfall of the year, gave promise of surviving the effects of the spring drought.

Precipitation since Saturday immediately benefited arid field crops and pasture lands, shallow-rooted vegetables and berries. Fruits, especially cherries, grapes and peaches, also were helped.

Rainfall was general in the state. As of yesterday, Dayton reported 3.42 inches of rain, Toledo 2.63, Columbus 2.98, Cincinnati 1.25, Cleveland .68, Akron .50 and Youngstown .48.

Downpours in central and southeastern Ohio last night forced closing of portions of a number of state routes, the state highway patrol reported: Routes 13, 50, 33, 216, 278 and 328, all in the patrol's Athens district (Athens, Meigs and Hocking counties). A bridge on Route 3 north of Columbiana was washed out.

Showers Follow Two Dry Months; Crops Suffering

Although the first of June brought belated April showers, last month's weather did little to relieve drought conditions, District Weather Observer Lawrence Copeland of Millport said today in his monthly report.

Declaring that "we are in the midst of one of the driest seasons on record," Copeland said that the total precipitation for May was 2.02, or 2.88 inches below the corresponding month of 1940, but 1.29 inches more than the April precipitation of .73. April was the driest single month in the past 49 years, according to the observer's records.

Normal precipitation for May is 3.30 inches. The wettest May was in 1929 when 6.50 inches fell, while the driest was in 1934, with only .62 inch.

The mean temperature last month was 59.4, compared to normal temperature of 57.9. The highest temperature reading in May was 89, registered on the 21st, while a low of 26 was recorded May 11 and 12. A year ago this high was 84 and the low 28.

Temperature to date is 35 degrees short of normal, Copeland said. There was a wide variation in temperature last month between night and day, the difference being 30 degrees.

The coolest May was experienced in 1917 when the thermometers dropped to 51.5 degrees. The hottest May on record came the following year with a 62.6 average. Sunshine last month equalled 60 per cent, against 45 a year ago.

"District drought conditions," the observer declared, "have practically eliminated the clover hay crop, in addition to the timothy and oats crops. One hundred per cent growing weather from now on will insure a corn crop. Pastures are short and the wheat crop will be below normal. Recent rains, however, have been highly beneficial."

City Hard Pressed, Can't Raise Wages, Police, Firemen Told

Now Getting $148.50, They Ask Restoration of Former $165

REVENUE LIMITED, SAYS FINANCE HEAD

Health Department Workers Also Petition for Restoration

The city's finances at the present time will not warrant a restoration of wages as requested by members of the police and fire departments, it was explained in city council meeting last night by A. P. Morris, chairman of the finance committee.

Morris' statement followed a conference Monday night with heads of the two departments, other members of his committee and the city auditor.

The firemen and police, now making $148.50 monthly, sought the $165 a month which was paid to them prior to 1933.

The councilman explained that the city's operation costs were limited, the city being allowed only 2.9 mills for actual operating expenses. He also said that unless the city raised some unanticipated revenue, it would experience difficulty in meeting the payrolls as they now stand.

"The committee realizes that living costs have risen some," Morris continued, "but we're going to have to stay within our financial limits or we're headed for trouble." He said he hoped the city employees would understand that the city's finances are not as flexible as those of a business establishment.

A letter was received from the board of health asking for a 10 per cent restoration of wages for the sanitary officer, the health nurse and the health commissioner. The request was referred to the finance committee.

One ordinance was passed by council. It was a measure transferring $600 from the general fund to the street lighting and supplies fund for street light improvements.

A request by Charles Rheuban, chairman of the safety committee, of installing parking meters in the downtown section, was referred to the safety committee.

City Engineer F. S. Barchhoff reported that a delay in obtaining materials from the government for the S. Broadway storm water sewer, had slowed down operations on the project for the time being.

URGENT RESERVOIRS IN STEEL SECTORS

Taft and Kirwan Suggest Protection For Ohio Defense Plants

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) advocated today early construction of two reservoirs to protect defense industries in the Youngstown-Warren, Ohio, steel mill area.

The senator presented the problem to the senate public buildings committee during discussion of the Lanham bill (HR4545) to authorize works to protect defense workers and industries. He said he was confident there was legislation broad enough to permit expenditures for the reservoirs.

Earlier, Representative Kirwan (D-Ohio) had told Taft that the works were needed urgently to prevent floods and to assure adequate water for steel plants producing much war material for national defense and aid to Britain.

Taft suggested that one of the reservoirs, the Berlin, might be built under flood control legislation and the other at Mosquito under the Lanham bill.

Taft said he also was looking into the possibility that some federal agency, perhaps the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, could finance at least one of the reservoirs.

"We will get them some way," Taft said later in an interview.

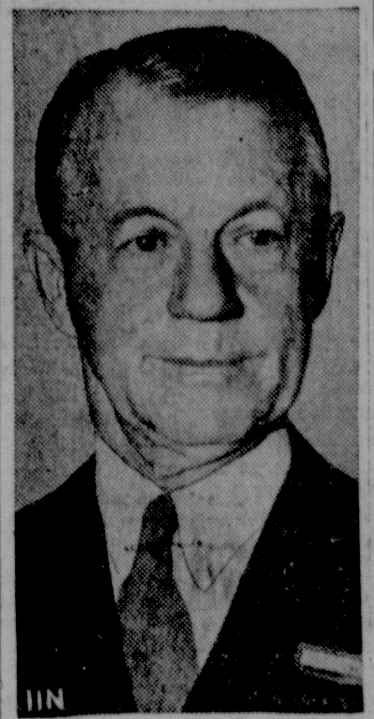

Chairman Lanham (D-Tex.) of the house public buildings committee said when his bill passed the house that the Ohio reservoirs could be built under the measure.

Taft said he did not intend to offer an amendment to authorize the reservoirs specifically but suggested that the legislation might be revised so as to remove any doubt that such works could be classified as necessary for defense.

The Lanham and flood control bills are authorization measures which customarily precede actual appropriations.

OIL SHORTAGE SEEN IN EAST

Less Gasoline For Autos Predicted, Beginning July 1

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 4.—The populous east got advance notice today to expect less gasoline for its automobiles and less fuel oil for its oil burners beginning July 1.

The shortage, petroleum experts said, would become progressively more acute during the autumn and on into next year.

To combat the approaching scarcity and to keep it from curtailing defense production, they recommended that rigid restrictions be imposed on the use of oil. Specifically, it was suggested that "gasless Sundays" be started, and that the temperature in oil-heated homes be kept five degrees lower this winter.

A full report on the situation was submitted yesterday to Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum coordinator, by a committee of the petroleum industry. The industry pledged its support "to any extent" in helping to meet the anticipated emergency.

Only last week Ickes, himself, mentioned the possibility of "gasless Sundays" to conserve the gasoline normally used by pleasure motorists. The Netherlands instituted such regulations shortly after the war started in 1939 and they were reported almost 100 per cent effective for non-essential vehicles, because offenders were fined more than $250.

The oil men estimated that a nationwide reduction of five degrees would save 100,000 barrels of oil a day.

NEW WELL IS BEING SUNK IN ZELLEY FIELD

Manufacturers, Merchants Emphasize Need of Immediate Action

SURVEY CONTRACT IS SIGNED BY CITY

Program for Future to Be Considered In Analysis By Engineers

Salem manufacturers and merchants, appearing before members of city council Tuesday night to stress the need of immediate action and long-range planning to improve the city's water supply for present and future needs, were assured by the solons that council would do all in its power to attempt to solve the problem.

Council's first step in this direction was the adoption of a resolution authorizing the service director to drill a new 12-inch well in the Zelle field, as recommended by a group of engineers from the various plants which inspected the city's well fields Friday. The drilling is now under way.

The checkup followed a sudden drop in reservoir level at the pumping station, which forced the plants to close Thursday night.

Sign Survey Contract

The next move was the affixing of the signatures of city officials to a contract between the city and the Arnold, Rosch and Hartline Engineering Co., of New Philadelphia for a complete survey of the city's water system, Arch H. Wentz, chairman of council's water committee, indicated that the survey might be launched within a week.

An early start of the survey was another recommendation of the manufacturers.

A $2,000 appropriation for the survey was approved by council two weeks ago.

The outside engineering firm will be asked to "survey, examine, investigate, make a study of, and analyze, the present quality and quantity of the city's water." The firm also will estimate the possibility of increasing the quantity of water from the present sources and other means.

The plant officials who attended the council meeting stressed the seriousness of the low water supply and explained the monetary loss when factories are forced to close. Most of the shops are working on defense orders, it was explained.

FIRST THINGS FIRST

The government's new authority to commandeer production for national defense is a simple matter of putting first things first. It will be accepted on that basis as it is exerted.

Unfortunately, few Americans are as well prepared for priorities control as they should be. Their political leaders consistently have preached to them that it is possible in the United States to perform miracles without sacrifices.

As recently as his latest speech President Roosevelt still was saying that social gains would be maintained, a promise that meant to most of his countrymen that the government would continue to spend money at the same rate for its pet projects.

While it may appear to persons making snap judgment that there is enough and to spare of everything in the United States to satisfy all ordinary demands, that comfortable conclusion makes no allowance for shortages created by the unusual demands of national defense. Conceivably, after years of detailed planning and accumulating reserves, the United States might be able to transform itself into a military power without any inconvenience to civilians other than higher taxes. But the United States does not have years; it has months. It does not have the reserves; it has only the need for reserves.

In its own way and for its own needs, this country must do what Germany began to do eight years ago, what Great Britain was forced to do in dead earnest a year ago, what every country with a will to survive in a world that has reverted to militarism must do. Americans must subordinate their individual interests to the collective interest which calls for the most complete military preparations possible in the shortest time. The government cannot be expected to do a good job unless its hands are untied.

LET'S HAVE IT NOW

One of the remarkable things about the fall of France—when viewed by hindsight—is the fact that most Frenchmen thought it was impossible. They were taken completely by surprise.

Chief reason for this, according to those who saw what happened, was the failure of the French press to inform the public. The government's mistakes were not subject to discussion. Censorship became so rigorous that newspapers regularly appeared on the streets with blank columns where news had been blacked out.

It is plain now that France made a ghastly mess of preparations for its defense. Not only were there major errors in its grand strategy, but blundering oversights and criminal negligence in the execution of many details of its preparedness program. The French went into a battle for survival with two strikes on them.

There are two ways to keep this from happening. In a dictatorship, the ruling regime is responsible for everything. It may or may not acquit itself of the responsibility. Germany's success must be matched with Italy's failure. In a republic, the ultimate resting point of responsibility is the public, which must be kept alert and informed by the press.

In the United States, which has a strong tradition of a free press, there is a disposition right now to talk freely of things that are not going well with preparations for national defense. Because this is information some of the people would prefer not to hear, they sometimes wonder whether it might be better to suppress it.

Americans have no place in their credo for post-mortems. If there is bad news to be told, they'd prefer to hear it in time to do something about it.

SUPREMACY SATISFIED

It is reported that in their latest tete-a-tete Hitler and Mussolini reached complete agreement on whatever it is that Mussolini was asked to agree to. Both parties are supremely satisfied.

This well rounded meeting of minds follows a complete Axis victory in Crete resulting from a total attack. It finds the Axis complete master of the Mediterranean as far east as a line drawn from Cyprus to Tobruk.

It leaves Italy wholly contented as well as entirely subdued. Germany, of course, remains undivided in its enthusiasm for an unmarred record in the war. The Nazi regime has been 100 percent victorious in Europe. The total war has been a roaring success, except for Britain's stubborn resistance.

As far as anyone knows, the population of Germany is undivided in its loyalty and all other populations now are unified under the rigid mastery of the "new order." Everything is lovely and fine.

Everything is too lovely and fine. The condition of total perfection described for onlookers is too good to be true. The blackout of adverse comment has been made so completely complete that it begins to challenge common sense.

Germany is coming dangerously close to the point of claiming that it has repealed a fundamental law in human affairs, second only to the law of gravity. The Nazi ministry of information will blossom out one of these days with a claim that Germans, being supermen, have discovered a way to keep from getting into their pants one leg at a time from a standing position. It can't be done, and he who speaketh to the contrary fabricate a fib.

REPORT ON THE LAUGH CIRCLE

For a number of years the name that meant movie clowning was Chaplin. He was terrific. When he made so much money he could quit working, it was a national loss. The same thing happened to Harold Lloyd. Other things happened to Arbuckle, Kenton, Blue, Polly Moran, Turpin, and Louise Dressler. But one by one they were taken away from the public. The Marx brothers filled in, but they say it is getting more difficult to develop suitable scenarios. The Ritz brothers helped, too, but after all the job is too big to be handled by a couple of brother acts. Wheeler and Woolsey, and Laurel and Hardy could have helped, but they had their ups and downs and ins and outs. It looked as though the movie comedy field was going to be taken over by the smart-cracking sophisticates. Benny and Allen, and Hope and Crosby had their points as humorists who stuck close to the people, but they were not, after all, bona fide cinema clowns. They were radio gagsters with boxoffice.

But—and this is the gist of the report—the latest thing in screen funny business isn't sophisticated comedy with borderline insinuations, the stuff supposed to be taking the place of the vanishing funny men, but a couple of fellows named Abbott and Costello using bewhiskered gags from the burlesque stage, and corny situations from the vintage cinema. The laugh cycle is apparently getting back to where it started from. You know, where, one fellow hits the other one in the face with a custard pie, then pushes him backward over a barrel and runs up the side of a building. Maybe the country is going to recover some of its old-time simplicity and straight-line vigor after all. It's one of the most encouraging signs since Thanksgiving was put back where it belonged.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, June 5

RATHER conflicting configurations of important planets seem to dominate on this day. However, there is promise of the definite support of elders, employers and those in power and standing to be counted upon in disappointing or disturbing situations, where the sagacious handling of disagreements may net not only advantages but the preferment or favors of those in influential positions. The element of surprise and suddenness figures conspicuously, bringing changes from original plans or purpose. Yielding in this should be profitable, and result in possible promotion. The inharmonious may be of a personal nature.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should approach the new year with confidence of recognition, promotion, tokens of esteem from those in high places. It would be well to suppress all tendencies to argument, disagreement and discord in order to secure substantial benefits. Change of plans and purpose may be the means of smoothing difficulties and maintaining harmony in private relations also.

A child born on this day, while being efficient and ambitious in a worldly way, should also be literary, artistic, idealistic, aspirational and deeply compassionate and spiritual. It may suffer somewhat in its affections through deep sensitivity.

VACATION MONTHS BRING ACCIDENTS

July Is Peak Month, Warns Clendenning

BY LOGAN CLENDENNING, M. D.

The United States is the healthiest large nation in the world. That statement recently appeared in the Pennsylvania State Medical Journal and is something we should ponder. In the first place it is worth while pointing out to the bureaucrats that this was accomplished largely under private practice of medicine. In the second place it is a good thing to scare us about how we are starving from lack of vitamins and how we have eight or nine different kinds of shadows on our land.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The United States today has reached the highest peak of health that has ever been accomplished in the history of the world in an area as large. This is not saying that there is not a good deal left to do but at any rate that is the record to date.

April Healthiest Month

We are entering now the healthiest period of the year. Beginning with April and extending on to about the first of October the incidence of disease falls astonishingly. With the beginning of school in the fall and the greater contacts that means, the contagious diseases begin. With the tendency to crowding indoors into theaters, movies and concerts, respiratory infections begin again in the fall, but these things drop out with the beginning of summer.

The healthiest of all months is April because then even accidental injuries fall. The average United States daily health rate from accidental injuries per month is about 265. The average for April is about 251. It is only slightly higher in May. This is understandable because the ice is off the streets and roads. The skidding of automobiles is reduced to a minimum, and all accidents associated with the hazards of icy streets are eliminated.

Accidents in July

But, and here is an object lesson, the worst month for accidental injuries is July when the daily average rises to 367 deaths from accidental injuries. This is almost entirely preventable. The roads are not dangerous so far as nature makes them dangerous in July. They are only dangerous because man is careless. Later on also the summer hazards of swimming, boating, electricity and lightning cause a rise in the toll.

The longer days of midsummer add to the dangers of that period. This is a rather sad reflection meaning simply that the more time man has, the oftener he kills himself from carelessness.

It is not the daylight itself which is dangerous, because figures show that fatal automobile accidents and in fact drownings occur more frequently in the twilight period when people are inclined to think they can cheat the darkness and push on just a little bit further.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

"I never dreamed the monthly payments on a Pontiac could be so small!"

WHEN AN OWNER of a lowest-priced car changes to Pontiac, the first good news he gets is the small size of his monthly payments. For contrary to what some may think, Pontiac owners will tell you Pontiac is priced so close to the lowest-priced cars they hardly notice the difference in their monthly payments!

Owners will also tell you that Pontiac is so economical on gas, oil and upkeep that it is actually costing them no more—and sometimes less—to own and operate than their former lowest-priced cars!

And the best news of all is that you actually pay no more for a Pontiac. You simply invest a little more because, thanks to Pontiac's reputation for dependability, those few extra dollars come back to you in higher value at trade-in time!

And in the meantime, you're enjoying the greater size, the more distinctive Body by Fisher beauty, the superior comfort, the finer performance and the remarkable economy of the fine car with the low price!

Why don't you investigate Pontiac? Your Pontiac dealer can prove to you, in five minutes, that, if you can afford any new car, you can afford a Pontiac "Torpedo"!

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van derdyk Mason

CHAPTER ONE

Coin jingled opulently in Mr. Howard Nevins' pocket as he tossed a half-dollar to the expectantly grinning Chinese bellboy who murmured thanks. After quite uselessly rearranging sundry battered and belabored bags and rod and gun cases, the boy slipped out, closing the door behind him.

For an instant Nevins... a lean figure with restless eyes and what looked like a silent mouth... stood in the center of his room, peering out at Honolulu's curiously polyglot architecture.

He started a little when the room telephone began to shrill with truly American impatience. A surprised frown creased Nevins' high brown forehead as he caught up the receiver. Who the devil could this be? Surely couldn't be any of the steamer crowd already,

"Hello," he said.

"Is this Mr. Howard Nevins?" It was a woman's voice... deep, musical and yet matter-of-fact.

"Yes. What can I do for you?"

"Nothing for me; but much for yourself," came the cryptic reply. "I do not think you are going to like Hawaii."

Howard Nevins' muscular hand tightened gradually over the receiver. "Are you sure?" he inquired. "that I am the Mr. Nevins you want?"

A low, vibrant laugh sounded in his ear. "Oh, beyond any question. I have been informed very authoritatively on the subject."

Slowly, certain muscles drawn across the newcomer's lean cheeks began to tighten, and his gray-blue eyes fixed themselves on the wall before him.

"To whom am I indebted for this interesting bit of soothsaying?"

"I am someone who wishes to avoid unnecessary unpleasantness. Be a wise man, Mr. Nevins. Take my advice and go back aboard the Malolo. I am sure—in fact, I am positive—that you would not enjoy Hawaii."

Nevins' voice copied the semi-bantering tone of the unknown. "On the contrary," he replied. "I am beginning to like it. Mystery appeals to me—and you represent mystery."

"You're wrong, Mr. Nevins," said the voice, and a curiously indefinable menace dominated it. "I represent tragedy. You must go."

"I'm afraid not," replied the occupant of Room 1533. "I really must see more of this charming island."

"All that you are likely to see," the unknown woman warned, "is the inside of a chilled room at Tripler General's morgue."

Thus he was somewhat prepared for the shock her next words gave him. "Your friend, Major Cross, ended there, and another friend of yours may also."

"To bad about Jerry Cross, wasn't it?" he commented calmly. "I never believed that suicide theory, you know."

"Then, monsieur, you are stupider than I have been led to believe. Please take my word for it, Mr. Nevins, you have arrived too late. If you persist in interfering with my arrangements, it will simply be a case of 'good-bye,' or 'sayo-nara,' as the Japanese say."

The man seated at Nevins' right said, "What do you think of Herr Polk's reigning favorite?"

"Decent of you to translate the word," the traveler murmured, "otherwise it would have worried me."

"Hellas!" the voice at the far end of the phone sounded almost mournful. "I had so hoped you would be reasonable."

"I am reasonable—in fact I'm famous for my reasonableness."

"But you are not, which is a pity; for now I shall have to have you killed."

"Ever hear of Mark Twain's receipt for chicken pot pie?"

"Comment?"

"First you catch the chicken—"

Click went the receiver, and Howard Nevins remained staring at the wall, while his right hand crept towards his pocket and brought out a handkerchief which he passed gently over his face.

"So Cross and the other boy let me down. Well—"

He turned and, with a grim smile, began to unpack.

Chairs, grated gently on the red tile floor of Abner Polk's big dining room and white-jacketed Filipino footmen rushed forward, ready to pull back the chairs still further.

"Shouldn't wonder but it'd be cooler downstairs, gentlemen," observed the man at the head of the table, a powerfully built, square-jawed individual with a mass of short, iron-gray hair, "so let's give the ladies a few minutes' start and then join them for coffee on the float. What do you say, Mr. Nevins?" he asked the guest on his right.

"Seems like a sound idea," Nevins, in blue serge and white flannels, agreed. "The phosphorus ought to be splendid until the moon rises."

Momentarily Nevins' head turned to gaze out on a purple-black expense of sea some 50 feet below. He abandoned his inspection when the three ladies of the party arose, with their brightly hued evening gowns glowing against the white-creased of the dining-room walls like gay daubs of paint on a new palette.

In a murmur of conversation the ladies prepared to leave.

"Be along in a jiffy," cried a red-checked young Coast Artillery officer on whose round face was stamped a look of perpetual wonder. "We've only got the fate of the world to settle."

"Alors, messieurs, promise not to be selfish and talk all night about this silly Tientsin affair?"

With a deceptive casualness the man at the host's right swiftly surveyed the supple figure of the speaker from head to foot as, in the act of turning, she paused, with one slender and jeweled hand resting lightly on the back of her chair. Something feline—that was what she resembled. Sleek, graceful, and strong was Phedre Renoire.

With pale and regular features set in a half-smile, half-mocking smile, she cast a lingering glance, first, at the imposing figure of the great millionaire who was the host. Then, in a pretty, unspoken appeal, she included the group of somber-faced men whose white dinner coats made their faces look even more deeply sunburned than they actually were.

"You'll come right down then?" she insisted.

While the rest of the company chorused an assent, the man at Nevins' right, who had eaten heartily and who had ventured barely a dozen words during the course of the elaborate dinner, suddenly leaned close, winked, and, with a gross chuckle, inquired:

"What do you think of Herr Polk's reigning favorite?"

"Mademoiselle Renoire is as beautiful as she is charming," Nevins replied, without taking his eyes from that graceful figure whose black hair served as a superb contrast for a simple and wickedly sophisticated yellow evening gown.

"Then, in a subtle rebuke, he added, 'And she has all the tact of her race—eh, Baron?'

Von Rentner's lips contracted a little.

"Ja, but like most of her race she worships gold. You Americans are not half so bad as the French when it comes to that."

"Thanks, but I maintain Mademoiselle Renoire doesn't look her role," Nevins repeated sotto voce. "Have you any idea why she came to be associated with that—?"

The German's shoulders interrupted with a curt laugh. "As I shall said, money is the reason. It takes more money to buy clothes like that. He laughed knowingly. "How well I know it."

"I wonder..." the American continued as he pulled a panetela from his case. "Somehow, she interests me and well, she looks too well-bred— How long have she and Mr. Polk been—er—friends?"

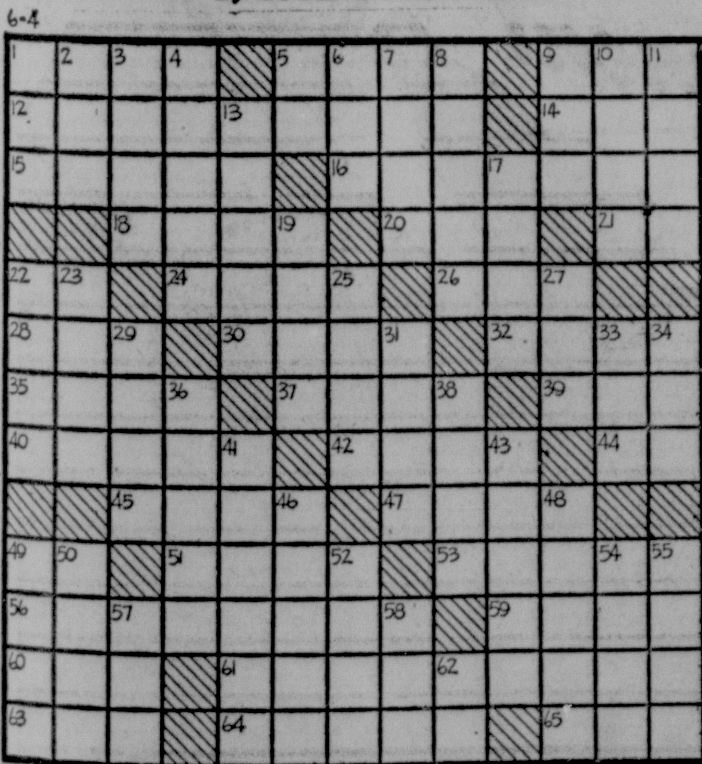

"For a big game hunter you are a remarkable psychologist," the German's small blue eyes flickered sidewise as though in sudden suspicion but, as the American was idly twirling his newly lit cigar, he continued, "I think they left known each other about three months. She stays always here on Oahu and keeps Kalua—this house—ready for him. Ja, my friend Polk, he travels much between Oahu and the mainland."

The big game hunter nodded to himself. "Oh, I see—I was wondering why she wasn't on the Malolo with us."

Congratulations GRADUATES OF 1941

The graduates of 1941 will find themselves a bit closer to "the top of the world" than their fellow graduates of the past few years.
Conditions of the world today offer the graduates of '41 many opportunities.
Actual jobs are to be found on every hand. Defense and allied industries offer opportunities of every conceivable kind, for both the Boy graduates and the Girl graduates. Getting these jobs, you will find yourselves a bit further up the proverbial ladder that leads to the "top" and to "success".
Then, too, these same world conditions offer to the graduates a challenge. A challenge to prepare for the future, to prepare for the time when we shall build anew . . . new democracies . . . new worlds . . . and restore high human ideals.
So we say to the graduates of '41: "Congratulations for the vast opportunities that lie before you, and may your efforts be rewarded with success."

HEAVY RAINS AID FARMERS IN OHIO

The moisture sharply reduced rainfall deficiencies for the year.

Cincinnati reported a deficiency of 9.50 inches to June 3, Dayton 7.68, Columbus 7.35, Akron 6.77, Youngstown 6.25 and Cleveland 5.28.

Toledo's deficiency was 3.97 inches to June 1.

Streams Replenished
Wilbur Stout, state geologist, said that while the rainfall probably would not affect the Ohio water table for months, "it will do great good to farm crops and replenish our low streams."

Despite the rains, the levels of streams providing water to some industrial areas—notably the Mahoning valley steel district—continue dangerously low, C. D. Youngquist of the U. S. Geological survey reported. Steel plants use water in cooling processes.

The Mahoning river at Leavittsburg, above Warren, flowed Monday at the rate of 128 cubic feet a second, against an average year-round flow of 506 cubic feet.

To conserve its diminishing supply the flow from Lake Milton reservoir into the Mahoning was shut off completely Monday. The reservoir level was 18½ feet below normal. The flow was resumed Tuesday at a rate of 16,000,000 gallons daily, compared to its normal flow of 80,000,000 gallons.

Hold Gehrig Funeral Today; Thousands Honor Baseball Idol

DEATH OF GREAT FIRST BASEMAN SADDENS MATES

Ruth, Dickey, Feel Loss of Slugger Who Died of Unsolved Disease

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 4.—The last sad sentences were recited over Lou Gehrig today in a vine-covered church around the corner from his home in the Bronx.

The wasted body of the great Yankee first baseman who died Monday night after a two-year fight against an unsolved disease rested in a mahogany coffin banked by thousands of blooms as the Rev. Gerald Barry spoke the burial office of the Episcopal church.

There was no music and the ritual was at a minimum, conforming with the request of Mrs. Gehrig. The public had expressed its sorrow last night in a line of men, women and children that wound past Lou's coffin before the altar for two hours.

Later today the body was to be cremated.

Babe Ruth Pays Respects
Babe Ruth, who preceded Gehrig in those famous Yankee batting orders, reached the little church last night just before dark. With him was Bill Klem, veteran National League umpire.

Babe stood for a minute looking at his former teammate. Tears welled into Ruth's eyes and ran down his fat cheeks. He stumbled over into a corner and buried his face in his arms.

An attendant opened a door and took the Babe into an adjoining room until he had regained his composure.

Were Close Friends
Gehrig and Ruth were closer friends than generally was realized, say their intimates. The Babe was Lou's boyhood idol, and after Lou became a Yankee regular in 1925 and he and Ruth became the twin scourge of American league pitching, the Babe took great pride in his young teammate.

McCarthy Tribute Recalled
Manager Joe McCarthy, it was recalled, paid the greatest tribute of all to Gehrig when, in the spring of 1939, he declined to remove Lou from his line-up, even though it was apparent to everyone that the great first-baseman had slipped badly and was doing neither himself nor the club any good. "Gehrig can play first base as long as he wants to," McCarthy was recalled to have said.

McCarthy flew in from Detroit late yesterday, as did also Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher, who was Gehrig's roommate and close friend for many years.

Already in Hall of Fame
Gehrig, who earned in the neighborhood of $400,000 in his baseball career and who shares with Ruth most of the game's slugging records, already is in the hall of fame at Cooperstown, so there is little more that can be done to prove his place in the hearts of fans.

In time there probably will be a monument to his memory in Yankee stadium, but that is not important. The thousands who walked past and told him goodbye last night pretty well summed up the feeling about Lou.

Tennis Team Beats Lisbon and Ursuline

Scoring their 12th and 13th victories of the season, Salem High tennis players defeated Ursuline 4-3 and Lisbon 6-1 in games this week. The netters played at Lisbon but were host to the Ursuline squad at Centennial park here.

The Solemnities, George Baillie, Walt Boinger, Gayle Stewart, Bob Ritchie, Carl Capel, and Phil Cozad, have lost only three games this season.

In the Lisbon game Baillie, Capel, Stewart, and Cozad won in the singles while both Baillie-Stewart and Capel-Ritchie won in the doubles. The Ursuline fray saw Ritchie, Capel, and Stewart turn in singles victories and Stewart-Baillie score a double win.

Female With A Rod And Reel Just As Deadly As The Male

MIAMI, Fla.—(The Special News Service)—Women have found a sport, big game fishing, in which they have to ask no favors of the men because—unlike golf, tennis, swimming or other athletic endeavors—a deft touch counts as much as muscle.

A few years ago when wives or sisters joined a deep sea fishing expedition it was pretty certain they were going along to do the cooking, or just for the boat ride.

Came improvements in tackle and angling methods, and the ladies laid aside their skillets and grabbed a line.

They learned fast.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(The Special News Service)—Major league officials may stage a memorial to Lou Gehrig in connection with the Cleveland-Cincinnati exhibition game June 13 at Cooperstown's baseball shrine. . . . Billy Conn has gone big time with a personal body-guard—Detective Joe Becker of Pittsburgh. . . . Next golf stop after the Open is the Mahoning Valley Open June 13, 14, 15 at Girard, Ohio. . . . To Lou Gehrig
We know the late Hughie Keogh, one of the greatest sports scribes of his day wouldn't mind if we lift the words he once penned to another great ball player and say through him:

"Good bye, Old Scout, And once again, good-bye— They called you out And baseball wonders why."

The Passing Show
Gene Sarazen, at 39, is going back this summer to considerable tournament playing. . . . Phil Rizzuto is bragging that he loaned Joe DiMaggio a ten spot the other night. Crying Towels Yet?
The recent skid of the Indians into second place, after getting a country mile out in front, recalls that at the beginning of the season one of the Cleveland sports columnists had this to say in an open letter to the Tribe:

"We want you to know that whether you win or not, we will be with you, or not."

Rounding Up the Strays
Johnny Ray tells Mike Jacobs Pittsburgh will buy $100,000 worth of pastebards for Conn-Louis. Tommy Murphy, who sells reserved seats at Fenway park, hadn't seen the first inning of a ball game for 25 years until the nightcap last Friday of the Yankee-Red Sox twin bill. . . . When payday rolled around at Camp Edwards, Private Hugh Mulcahy received his net pay of $15. If he were still with the Phillies, his check would amount to $1,000.

two world record game fish, and they walk off with a good share of the awards in every tournament not limited to male competitors.

A surprising lack of grumbling about the invasion of their favorite pastime is noted among masculine anglers by such observers as Bob Munroe, Miami Daily News editor.

"The men are glad the women enjoy the sport," he commented. "After all, there are enough fish to go around."

Heed Guide's Advice
Munroe attributes part of the marked success of the feminine anglers to their willingness to heed their guide's advice.

"After a few trips a man is likely to think he knows more about the sport than his guide," he explained. "On the other hand, women are new at the game and they are cagey enough to listen to an expert."

The heaviest recorded blue marlin—a 730-pound beauty—was brought to gaff off Cat Cay, in the Bahamas, by Mrs. Henry Sears of Greenwich, Conn., in June, 1939.

Her amazing skill is proved by the fact that she used 24-thread line which is tested, when wet, to hold only 72 pounds of dead weight.

Has Tuna Record
The other world record catch credited to a woman is a 164½-pound albacore tuna caught by Edith Cooke in Hawaiian waters in 1939.

Men are the world champions at landing the other 32 recognized species of ocean game fish, but they had a head start of years and years.

Mrs. James Simpson of Chicago brought in the heaviest dolphin known to have been caught in the Atlantic ocean—a 58-pounder taken off Havana, Cuba.

Break Six Miami Records
Six of the 28 records in the six-year-old $10,000 metropolitan Miami fishing tournament are catches made by women. They are a 19½-pound albacore landed by Winifred J. Gray of Chicago; a 64-7-pound mako shark by Mrs. Emory Ford of Grosse Pointe, Mich.; a 62½-pound blue marlin by Mrs. Milton Lusk of Miami Beach; a 104½-pound sailfish by Ruth W. Edmunds of Newton Center, Mass.; a 34½-pound jack crevalle by Mrs. R. H. Jacobson of Miami Beach; and a 102½-pound tarpon credited as a record in the plug casting division to Frankie Laidlaw of Miami.

One of the ablest bonefish guides in the Florida keys is a woman, Mrs. Bonnie Smith of Islamorada.

Might Embarrass Men
Sometimes woman's fishing luck could be a little embarrassing to the men—if they would let it.

Last year two score masculine competitors in the Cat Cay Tuna tournament had full sway along "tuna lane" on four days when the fish were known to be plentiful.

JOHN WYATT PUTS BROOKLYN ON TOP IN NATIONAL RACE

Becomes Circuit's Leading Shut-out Pitcher As He Beats Cards, 4-0

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

You look at the National league pitching averages today, at the record of John Whitlow Wyatt, and you wonder whether that song-writer didn't have the Tigers, the White Sox and the Indians in mind when he turned out that little thing about the "Three Blind Mice."

The lean chucker from Chickamauga is wearing the same right arm now as he wore back in the '30s. Yet, those three American league clubs all brushed him off. And right now Wyatt's the hottest thing to hit the National league since Frankie Frisch blasted his first umpire.

Wins Ninth of Season
All that John Whitlow's doing is winning the whitewashing championship of the major leagues as he tosses these bewildering Brooklyn Dodgers to the top of the National league pile. He turned in a snappy six-hitter yesterday to sink the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0, for his ninth victory of the season. This not only put the Dodgers back up into a tie with the Cards for first place, but also marked the fourth time this year Wyatt has dished up a dainty set of goose eggs.

Wyatt's sparkling tossing was the most important of a parade of Grade-A elbowing efforts turned loose yesterday.

Hughes Allows One Hit
Tommy Hughes of the Phillies turned in a one-hit job that mowed down the Chicago Cubs, 7-0.

Another youngster, Bob Carpenter served up a five-hitter to give the Giants a 7-3 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

In the American league the Detroit Tigers trounced the New York Yankees, 4-2, behind Dizzy Trout's eight-hit effort.

Pittsburgh used two hurlers to four for Boston and won a free-for-all 9-5 affair. St. Louis defeated Washington under the arc-lights, 14-12.

The Boston-Cleveland night game and the Philadelphia-Chicago day doings in the American league were rained out.

A lot of fish were caught, the heaviest 584 pounds.

Board Reserves Ruling In E. Liverpool Petition

LISBON, June 4—The state tax appeal board reserved a decision today after hearing conflicting claims in the East Liverpool board of education suit to compel the Columbiana county budget commission to increase from 3.5 to 4.24 mills the school district's tax grant. The additional millage would raise $16,000 annually. City Solicitor Carroll P. Lynch said $365,392 allotted the schools is short of the needs, while Prosecutor Frank W. Springer, opposing the claim, declared the district has accumulated yearly balances now totaling $90,000.

KAISER, WHOSE OWN WAR FAILED, DIES

chine by affixing tiny flags on detailed maps of European countries and by maintaining a remarkably complete index of naval and merchant shipping losses.

The only change at his estate was the substituting of Dutch guards by German soldiers after the four-day conquest of Holland last spring.

The Kaiser to the very end followed enthusiastically the news of the German army's successes. He and Hitler exchanged messages on conclusion of the Polish campaign in September, 1939. Wilhelm expressing admiration for the army which had always been dear to his heart.

But, from the moment of his exile more than 22 years ago, he had determined not to return to Germany unless his dynasty should be restored.

Despite countless rumors to the contrary, it can be said authoritatively that Wilhelm never revisited the fatherland.

His own death came as he wished—without long suffering.

An active man, he dreaded nothing more than long illness. While he gradually had grown weaker during the past winter, he appeared vigorous when he observed his 82nd birthday anniversary Jan. 27.

Ready For Death

At his bedside when he died were only a few close members of his family—his second wife, Princess Hermine; his daughter, the Duchess of Brunswick; and his grandsons, Louis Ferdinand, Karl, and Franz Joseph, and the latter's wife, Princess Henrietta.

The first Kaiserin died April 11, 1921, and was buried at Potsdam. The former emperor's eldest living son and successor as head of the Hohenzollern family, Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, had been at his father's side earlier, but left late last week when the former kaiser seemed to rally.

Second in the family line, Prince Louis Ferdinand also was away from Doorn.

Theatre Attractions

Judy Canova scores a distinct hit in the musical comedy, "Sis Hopkins", showing at the State tonight and Thursday. In featured parts are Bob Crosby, with his orchestra, Susan Hayward, Charles Butterworth and Mary Ainslee.

The stage and early movie success of the same name gives the songstress, who once trained for grand opera career, an opportunity to display her individual style of comedy and song. Better known on the stage and in radio, her first picture, "Scatterbrain", was only a mild success, but the perennial "Sis Hopkins" makes up for the first film.

When Charles Butterworth, millionaire, retires from business the newspaper headlines lead his hill-billy niece to think he has lost his fortune. She invites him to live with her and, tired of his socially minded wife and daughter, he accepts, arriving at the home to find it burned to the ground and the niece homeless. He takes her back with him, where she proceeds to become his family's greatest grief. She is sent to college, wins a place in a musical which the daughter hoped to get and finds life a very complicated business.

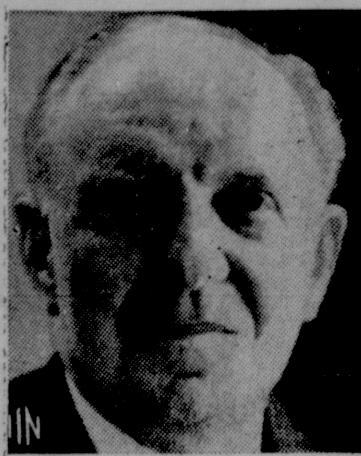

The Grand's double bill tonight only is: "The Penthouse Mystery", an Ellery Queen story with Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay, Charles Grapewin, Anna May Wong, James Burke and Eduardo Cianelli; and "Under Age", featuring Nan Grey, Alan Baxter, Mary Anderson, Tom Neal and Leona Maricle.

Manufacturers, Merchants Emphasize Need of Immediate Action

and must make deliveries as scheduled.

Among the manufacturers present were George Lozier of the Electric Furnace Co., Andrew MacLeod and J. V. Emery of the Mullins Mfg. Corp., G. R. Deming of the Deming Co., and George Baillie of the Quaker City Foundry. All of them discussed the water situation as did R. S. McCulloch and Ralph Hawley.

All of the plant officials expressed their willingness to cooperate with the city officials to the utmost in any move to improve the water situation, and urged that the water survey be started as soon as possible.

Lozier and MacLeod contended that the drilling of a new well probably would remedy present conditions, but recommended a program looking to the future. Emery pointing out that shutdowns like the one last Thursday night were costly said it was essential that the survey be started at once. Baillie echoed his remarks.

Wentz, chairman of council's water committee, said the city was fortunate to have weathered the storm in the recent crisis. He explained that council now had done practically all that a legislative unit could do. The responsibility of carrying out the program rests with the administrative branch of the city government, he added.
